1 Pre-heat your oven to 200 degrees. Cut the potatoes into quarters (but don't peel the nutritious skin). Peel and roughly chop the onion into 3cm cubes.

2 Toss the potatoes and onion in 2 tbsp of olive oil, ½ tsp of salt and a good grind of pepper. Roast on a large baking tray on the top shelf of the oven for around 25 mins.

Tip: Give the tray a good shake 10 mins in to cook the other side. Remove from the oven once the potatoes are nice and crispy.

3 Place your hand flat on each chicken breast and slice in half from the side. Tip: You want to be able to open up the chicken breast like a book (this is called 'butterflying'). Lay the chicken between two sheets of clingfilm. Whack the chicken using the base of a pan or a rolling pin until it is less than ½cm thick.

4 LH: Spread 1½ tbsp of the pesto over each flattened breast. Slice the mozzarella into strips and lay along one edge. Roll the chicken up from the edge with the mozzarella and secure with cocktail sticks or skewers if you have some. Tip: It should look a bit like a Swiss roll! Tip: If your chicken breasts are fully stuffed with mozzarella, you can save the rest of the cheese to mix through your salad.

5 Heat 1 tbsp of olive oil in a pan on a medium-high heat. Season the outside of the rolled chicken breasts with salt and pepper and cook for 5 mins. Depending on the size of your pan, you may need to cook fewer at a time to ensure you keep the temperature of the pan hot enough to brown the chicken, rather than stew it. Tip: Turn regularly to give the outside an even golden colour.

6 Turn the oven down to 180 degrees. Transfer the chicken to a baking tray and place on the top shelf of the oven. Tip: If you have some tinfoil, you can loosely cover the chicken with it to help retain some moisture. Cook for around 10-15 mins then remove and rest for a few mins before serving. Tip: The chicken is cooked when it is no longer pink in the middle.

7 Toss the roasted potatoes and onions with the rocket and serve with the chicken.
